

The final series of the 2024 calendar year was marked by significant volatility. The Nifty index saw some buying interest, briefly reclaiming the 24,850 level, but encountered strong resistance in that range for the next two weeks. This led to a sharp sell-off, pushing the index down to test the 24,000 mark and eventually plunging to 23,650 on the final day of the December series. Ultimately, the roller-coaster ride concluded just below the 24,000 level.

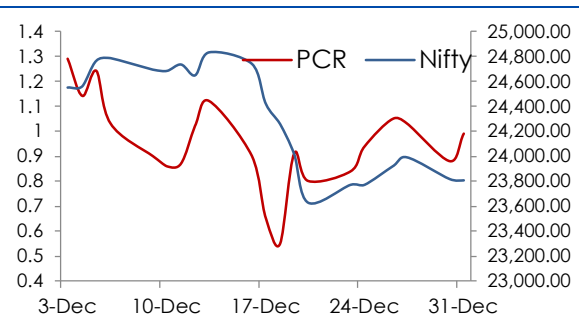

The Nifty rollover stood at 78%, below the three-month average, with a decrease in outstanding contracts, signaling that long positions had been lightened and fresh short are being carried forward in the next series. Liquidity in the Indian equity market was further constrained by strong hands, with net selling of ₹16,982 crore. Interestingly, Domestic Institutional Investors doubled this with net buying of ₹34,195 crore. However, Foreign Institutional Investors reduced their long positions and added significant short positions during the second half of the series, declining the index futures Long-Short Ratio from 33% at the start of the series to 18% by the end.

Given these factors, we maintain our cautious stance on the market. A sustained move above the 24,000-24,200 range is essential to revive bullish sentiment. Until then, traders should focus on accumulating quality stocks.
