

The February series was marked by significant domestic and international events that influenced market sentiment. Apart from some buying interest in the initial week, the benchmark index faced consistent selling pressure throughout the month. Nifty breached its previous swing low of 22,800 and corrected further toward the 22,500 level. Ultimately, the index ended the series with a loss, marking the fifth consecutive month of decline, closing around the 22,500 mark.

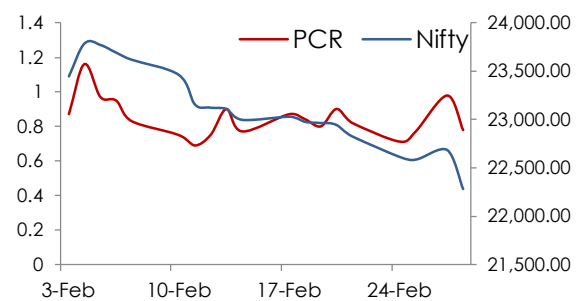

The Nifty rollover for the February series stood at 84%, surpassing the three-month average, with an increase in outstanding contracts from the previous series. This indicates that short positions have been carried forward into the next series. Market liquidity remained tight as strong hands continued net selling, amounting to ₹58,988 crore in February. However, Domestic Institutional Investors (DIIs) provided support by being net buyers, purchasing ₹64,853 crore. Notably, the Long-Short Ratio for index futures improved from 11% at the start of the series to 15% by the end. Despite this uptick, the market remains in an extremely oversold zone.

Unlike Nifty, the rollover for the banking index remained on the lower side, with a month-on-month unwinding of positions. This suggests that short positions in banking stocks have been lightened up, which is a positive development. Looking ahead, traders should adopt a cautious approach, keeping index positions light while selectively adding quality stocks in a phased manner.
